Memories in Music to Stage Charity Event with Proceeds Going to the Outside Edge

On Saturday October 29th at 7:00 PM in the Hinchingsbrooke Performing Arts Centre, Huntingdon based community interest company Memories in Music is staging a charity event during which members of the audience can change the evening's entertainment. Memories in Music present the powerful play 'A High Price To Pay' by the innovative theatre group The Outside Edge Theatre Company, with a musical performance by Ric Sanders of Fairport Convention, and guitarist, singer and songwriter Vo Fletcher.

The Outside Edge Theatre Company includes former Led Zeppelin member Jimmy Page amongst its patrons and works from the perspective of creating theatre and drama with diverse groups affected by substance misuse and abuse. The company's performers have all been affected by substance misuse in the past, and they write and perform plays to highlight the issues surrounding addiction.

On the night, any audience member can change the play. New scenes suggested by the audience in a thought provoking forum will be performed by the actors, a powerful experience that has helped many people struggling with addiction and those affected by it.

Drug and alcohol related issues touch the lives of many people. This event is an opportunity to raise funds to help people take a first step towards freedom from active addiction and its related problems. Witnessing the performances of the Outside Edge has caused thousands of people to seek help and the performance moves people to think on their own situations, and then points them toward local agencies for further help.

Tickets are £10, and are available from www.memoriesinmusic.com There is also more information on the event here
